THEY SAY

—That woman's worst enemy is woman. Is that so?

—That when some people haven't a row going, they're not happy.

—That the person who throws mud is usually dirty anyhow. Ob cose dey am.

—That it's awfully hard for a woman to tell you what she actually likes best. Can you?

—That the man who is too poor to lend money to his friends will never have many enemies.

—That there's not a department store on earth which could supply the wants of some women. Lord help.

—That at a certain buffet flat all the ladies who "serve" wear silk pajamas. Have you seen them?

—That when a white man got up and offered his seat in a street car to a colored woman the other day, every white person in the car nearly fainted. It was shocking, wasn't it?

—That a certain man went home the other night with all his clothes on except—his shirt, hat, socks and B. V. D's. He's been trying to explain ever since how some "hold ups" stripped him and sent him on his way. Poh man!

Among the affairs given in her honor are: A six plate luncheon by Mrs. Taylor Burger; a four plate dinner by Mrs. Emma Riley; Mrs. Erna Payne had supper for four; Mrs. Salie May Scruggs of Kansas City, Kas., with a dinner and a theatre party by Mrs. Myrtle Brooks.
